When Golden Week coming, foot of Daisetsuzan , Rice planting begins in Higashikawa. Water from Daisetsuzan is spread over paddy fields, Kamui Mintara (The garden where the gods play) reflected on the surface of the water immediately after the rice was planted in the early morning without wind. A large amount of snow that falls on the Daisetsuzan mountain, which is said to be 200 million tons per year, soaks into the underground, creating groundwater that is rich in minerals, bringing blessings that are indispensable to daily life and creating beautiful scenery. However, it is not a landscape created overnight, but thanks to seniors from Japan and abroad who have lived in Higashikawa for over 120 years.

When I saw a picture of Mr. Kazuemon Hidano who was a photographer and the picture is more than 50 years ago, while a woman was barefoot planting rice and warming her cold body with fire. How hard it would have been to produce food in an era without machines.

✓ New members have arrived this winter

Hi everyone, My name is Wang, and I am Song, who are in charge of multilingual translation from the visitor center. We come from Taiwan and South Korea. We will introduce Mt. Asahidake and interesting contents such as foreign culture and nature. Let's enjoy it.
